Education Unlimited, one of the nation’s leading youth summer academic-enrichment program providers, is looking for qualified and energetic Computer Camp instructors to join our teams at UC Berkeley, Stanford, UCLA, and UC San Diego for various camp sessions between June - August 2016.

Computer Camp Instructor

The Computer Instructor is responsible for leading a class in Graphic Design, Web Design (HTML and CSS or Javascript), Java Programming (beginning and advanced), Intro to Computers (including survey of web design and various programs), or Business Technology.

The Computer Instructor for Web Design is responsible for guiding students through the web design process, using HTML and CSS to design and build a website in the beginning class, and introducing Javascript in more advanced classes. The Computer Instructor for Java Programming is responsible for guiding students through the programming process through game design. Graphic Design and Business Technology Instructors will introduce students to computer programs designed to build graphics and complex documents, and also teach students basic web design skills. The Intro to Computers Instructor will lead younger students through a survey course in computer programs.

All instructors will lead daily workshops and seminars in a computer lab, and assist students in one-on-one feedback sessions. Successful instructors will have strong organizational and classroom management skills, and be able to work well with campers and staff. Instructors should have some professional experience as a web designer or programmer, and some experience teaching. Most importantly, instructors should be passionate about teaching and able to make complicated lessons clear to young learners in grades 4-12.

Responsibilities include teaching Education Unlimited curriculum, acting as mentor to students, supervising students, and executing a finale showcasing student work at the end of camp. Instructors have the option of commuting to camp each day or staying overnight on campus. Overnight staff members will have room/board included, and will be expected to help with evening supervision duties. A bachelor’s degree is required for this position, a master’s degree or PhD is a plus.

All positions are paid. To apply to any of the above positions, please follow the link: https://www.educationunlimited.com/pages/job_opportunities

Instructors may be hired for one week or for multiple sessions at a campus. Please indicate your availability on the job application.
